month probably will see the beginning of a return to ordered civilian life throughout the great part of Ireland.

Measures including the posting of the newly trained civic guard throughout the country, and establishing new county courts empowered to deal with rebel activities as civil instead of military offenses will be offered in Parliament as soon as the fered in Parliament as soon as the constitution, which entered the committee stage to-day, is finally adopted.

Although the Provisional Government, showed to-day, in dealing with the first amendments offered, that it HURTS HER BROTHER was disposed to accept all reasonable alterations not infringing upon the Anglo-Irish treaty, nevertheless it was demonstrated that on any measure it deems vital to the maintenance of the treaty it was able to muster sixty-five votes against the probable maximum of twenty-three by the opposition.

One of the first measures the Gov ernment expects to introduce when the constitution is finished is a bill making the illegal possession of arms a capital offense. The Government in ing when they were struck by a truck Pawling, N. street, a solutioned yesterday that an "Ex-Service Men's Anti-Bonus League" has the backing of a group of world war vetterans. The organization is designed to give expression to views of veterans who do not believe in a cash bonus. It will stand against any future proposals of gratuities for healthy ex-service men.

The members of the new league have drawn up resolutions which explain that they are opposed to a bonus because most men joined the service under the force of compulsion, not patriotism; because most men joined the service under the force of compulsion, not patriotism; because the army in better physical and mental shape than they were in when they entered it; because thousands of soldiers "earned more net money while in the army than ever before; because the present of any possible sum of money would only mean "a short period of release from labor, and a royal good time while the money lasted," and because the bonus should have been patd, if ever, immediately upon the discharge of the soldiers.

IN REAR OF TENEMENT

Remains Quiet in Carriage for Hours, Then Cries.

A nine-months-old girl baby, wrapped in a white blanket and lying in a blue carriage, was found abandoned last night in the rear of the first floor hallway of a tenement house at 601 Third avenue. Tenants saw the carriage there early in the afternoon, but thought it had been placed there by a mother who was visiting in the house. Soon after dark the baby began to cry and attracted the attention of Harry Werner, who has a plumbling shop next her, who has a plumbing shop next loor, at 559 Third avenue.

A bottle of milk apparently had been blaced in the carriage but the baby had brunk its contents. She was taken to drunk its contents. She was taken to the East Thirty-fifth street station by Patrolman Edward Stoll and later to Bellevue Hospital to await identifica-

GERMANY GIVES NOTES FOR 96,000,000 MARKS

Completes Payments for August and September. Panis, Sept. 25 (Associated Press).— The German delegation to-day delivered to the Reparations Commission here notes for approximately 98,009,000 gold marks in payment of the August and September 15 allotments due to Belgium.

The difference between this amount and the 100,000,000 marks due has been made up by coal deliveries and deliveries of dye stuffs for the textile alliance. The payment was split into ten notes in accordance with a desire expressed by the Beigian Government in order to facilitate in discounting them.

MILLS ADMITS GIVING HINT OF SUSPECTING HIS WIFE

that suspicions swing around from one character to another with astounding precision and that a theory abandoned has to be returned to again and again as new developments and small incidents come to light, and chance remarks are made by this person or that. The contradictions in the case are as numerous as the coincidences and what appear one day to be allibis are worthless the next.

Mills has been interviewed in his house, on his back porch, in the street, and to-day he did his talking sitting near the furnace in the basement of the Lord Stirling School, of which he is the janitor. The nervous little man of a week ago is almost imperturbable now and there are no signs of sorrow.

In reply to questions he denied that he had telephoned to Hall about the bill of the physician for the operation on his wife. He said flatly that there had been no dispute or misunderstanding about any item of that bill. This is in contradiction to the statement of Mrs. Hall. Who says her husband, the last the content of the said in the last of the church, he said the returned home and lay down in the kitchen, leaving a light burning and the door unlocked. On the Friday morning he saw Mrs. Hall at the church, he said the conversation was as follows, with him asking:

"Have you any sickness in your house?"

"No, my husband hasn't been home since last night."

"My wife hasn't been home since last night."

"My wife hasn't been home since last night."

"No, it must be foul play. Mr. Hall was never out so late before. I am going to telephone the police."

And Mills remarked as to this:

"I said nothing. I hadn't any money to telephone the police."

The idea of elopement, said Mills, just "popped" into his head at the moment he was talking to Mrs. Hall. He had not thought of such a thing before and believed if it had been intended he would contradiction to the statement of Mrs. Hall, who says her husband, the last about any item of that bill. This is in contradiction to the statement of Mrs. Hall, who says her husband, the last time he left home, went to the Mills house to see Mills about something in the bill Mills did not understand. Mills denied, too, that his wife knew anything about the Ku Klux Klan, which has been mentioned in connection with the case more than since.

Again—and it is rather extraordinary with what persistence the little man returns to this subject—he asserted that he knew all about the letters his about a year ago.

Mills said he found a third and strange key on the ring on which he carried the two keys to the church after they were returned to him following the Hall funeral. He gave the keys to the Rev. Thomas Conover, who arranged the funeral and who later gave them to the secretary of the Sunday School. Sigvard Emiliussen, who passed
